

Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders Legislation Report (As of October 2009)

INTRODUCTION

The Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders (FASD) Center for Excellence (the Center) is a federally funded initiative devoted to preventing and addressing FASD. The Center has joined the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and others in adopting the term Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders to describe the wide range of problems that can develop when a fetus is exposed to alcohol in the womb. The Center provides resources and information on FASD to expand the knowledge base and promote best practices in both FASD prevention and treatment.

One of the many resources and products the Center offers is the FASD Legislation Report, a bi-annual review of legislation related to FASD. This latest report updates the April 2009 report and includes legislation introduced, updated, or passed between 2003 and October 2009. During that time, the Center has identified 199 FASD-related bills, distributed across 39 States (see Tables 1.1 and 1.2).

METHODOLOGY

The FASD legislative report is compiled by searching State legislative databases using the search terms in Table 1.0.

The FASD-related bills identified in this report are categorized as follows:

1. Criminalization—legislation that either prohibits or enables prosecution of women for alcohol use during pregnancy or giving birth to a child affected by an FASD.
2. Funding—legislation appropriating or repealing funds for FASD prevention or treatment.
3. Involuntary Commitment—legislation permitting a State to involuntarily commit a woman into treatment where there is evidence of alcohol use during pregnancy.
4. Prevention—legislation that mandates or supports research, public information, training and programs on FASD issues.
5. Treatment—treatment for individuals affected by an FASD or for women who drink during pregnancy.
6. Requirements for Professionals—including teacher certification, physician licensing, mandatory training, and reporting requirements.

FINDINGS

Below are the Center's findings on FASD-related legislation for the years 2003–2009. Specific bills, categorized by State, may be viewed in Appendices A and B and at the Center's Web site at <http://fasdcenter.samhsa.gov/statesystemsofcare/statesystemsofcare.cfm>.

Notable Trends in 2009

- There were 47 bills introduced across 21 states (see Table 1.4).
- Of the 47 bills introduced, 12 bills passed.
- Two States (Georgia and North Dakota) introduced legislation for the first time since 2003.
- In 2009, legislative action mainly focused on funding and prevention, a dominant trend since 2003.

Notable trends since 2003 by Category

Criminalization

Twelve States introduced 26 bills; 9 passed. Twenty-one bills address the definition of child abuse and neglect, which may aid in the prosecution of a woman who has given birth to a child with an FASD. Two bills prohibit the prosecution of a woman who has given birth to a child with an FASD. Three bills are unclear as to their intentions.

Funding

Nineteen States introduced 51 bills; 14 passed. Having rejected attempts to repeal funding in 2008, the California legislature in 2009 allocated funds for Mass Media Communication in alcohol-use prevention for pregnant women.

Involuntary Commitment

Only four States have attempted to pass laws permitting women to be mandated into treatment facilities—Alaska in 2006; Florida and Utah in 2007; Louisiana in 2009. Legislative action was unsuccessful in all instances.

Prevention

Thirty-one states introduced 77 bills; 34 passed. Fourteen bills pertain to posting warning signs or notices in establishments selling alcohol.

Treatment

Fifteen states introduced 30 bills; 10 passed. Sixteen bills address the treatment of pregnant women for alcohol use, as opposed to the treatment of individuals affected by an FASD.

Requirements for Professionals

Six states introduced 11 bills; 3 passed. Four bills require teachers and physicians to take courses on FASD as part of their certification and/or licensing. Three bills require that a professional document an infant's prenatal exposure to alcohol for the purposes of providing a medical diagnosis, treatment, or care.
